look at some of the high belted notes in popular songs by male artists.. In fact, many of the original singers of these songs can't reliably belt out those high notes night after night – it just isn't healthy.. I'm a professional singer and I can only comfortably belt up to a C#5 or D5 Kode Register One Karaoke SoftwareIn contrast, here are a few of the belted high notes in some popular songs with female singers:Taylor Swift's "Shake it Off" (D5) Katy Perry's "Firework" (D#5) Sia's "Chandelier" (F5) Ariana Grande's "Problem" (G#5)These notes are a fifth to an octave above what most women are capable of belting.. They're so high in fact, that a trained singer like me can't belt most of them! It's physically impossible for most women to sing these songs without straining their vocal cords or flipping up into head voice..
